

Dear Family & Friends,

We greet you with hearts full of excitement and expectation. I recently wrote a blog about our New Year's REVOLUTION! We believe for the expansion of God's plan to unfold even clearer in 2011. We pray the same for you! Transitions are always just a couple of breaths away, but it is obvious that the Lord continues to drive us deeper into community, relationship and covenantal environments that require practicality, not just spiritual theory. Before I spill that entire notion here, let me give you a brief family update.

Our kids, their mates and our grandchildren are all still in Colorado Springs. Nicole recently finished Grad School and acquired her Nurse Practitioner degree. She is working for a busy Women's Clinic and loves it! Steve continues to lift heavy accounting responsibilities for Bethesda Ministries and Mission of Mercy. Paige is currently pregnant with our third grandbaby! She's due in August. Jon persists to expand his anointing and influence at New Life Church and in the Christian music scene with Desperation Band and Heartwork. Jones and Isabel will be 3 years old in April. You need information? Ask them. They are full of information, excitement and a whole bunch of sweetness. Pops and Nana are smitten in every sense of the word! Patti's mom is a joy to us; and my parents are doing amazingly well, still going 100 mph in McGregor. Our spiritual kids back home are doing the business! ECF is growing at every important point. The foundations of honor and covenant are strong! Their gifts are unique and destined to bring about a great harvest in McGregor! All and all, Patti and I would have to declare that our family is blessed beyond measure! We could not be happier or more proud of any of them!

Since 2008, Patti and I have been involved with Adventures in Missions (www.adventures.org) via The World Race (www.theworldrace.org). Our first assignments involved coaching and mentoring squads of 50+ kids who are traveling the globe in mission work. It has been quite the thrill to be with these amazing kids. They minister in eleven different countries in an eleven-month time span. We can pretty much tell you what airport we're in by how it smells. The mileage and the wear and tear on our bodies are ruthless, but we are driven by what we believe to be His perfect desire for us. We absolutely feel called to do what we do and our intense love for this generation holds our feet to the fire with much steadfastness.

In all honesty, we see what they are capable of doing. Whether we read blogs (and we read hundreds of blogs) or hear the stories, we know that regardless of where they minister, God is invited into their space. Whether it's a bar in Phuket, a trash heap in Nicaragua, an orphanage in West Africa, a medical clinic in Cambodia, or a church in Eastern Europe, these kids are bringing the hope of His authority into the most desperate of situations in the world! They are fearless and full of faith! It is an honor to serve with them.

Often we are asked what we do. It is a great question! We are missionaries, who pastor missionaries, who are doing the work of the Kingdom at home and abroad via the various ministries of Adventures in Missions, located in Gainesville, Georgia, USA. Patti and I provide pastoral and mentoring support to the staff of The World Race, Real Life, Ambassadors and Short Term Missions departments. The ministry is growing daily and the staff is also growing at an exponential pace. We are committed to helping meet the pastoral needs of the staff and expand the opportunities for community development and discipleship within the ministry. High liberty, high grace, high preference and large quantities of responsibility provide the basis of our ministry. Patti and I currently live in Colorado Springs, but we've committed to being in Gainesville at least 10 days a month to undergird the ministry with our presence and influence. That looks like lots of coffee dates, much counseling, broad discipleship, and just doing the work of service for a dedicated group of young people. On top of that, we will continue to be involved in the Training Camps, Squad Launches and Mid-Term Debriefs of The World Race. It is inevitable that we will need to transition to Gainesville permanently at some point, but no decision has been made yet as far as the timing. We covet your prayers in such a weighty matter to us! More change is on the way.

Please take the opportunity to check out our website: www.everytribeinternational.org. It discloses more information about the ministry and regularly updates on our whereabouts. There is a place on the site to sign up for automatic email updates when we make changes to the site. It also presents all our contact information and schedules.

Please continue to pray for our safe travels, our health, our family, and all efforts to mobilize a generation who desires to see an outpouring of Spirit and Truth. We are committed to doing what He has asked us to do. Also, we ask for your financial support in these endeavors. Your giving allows us the opportunity to be on the field overseas or press His cause here in the States. We cannot do this stuff without your help! We are not salaried employees. There are a few exceptions, but everyone on staff with AIM is support raised, just like the thousands of missionaries we put on the field every year. As the missionaries we serve, the depth of our involvement in this ministry is only possible to the extent of your financial generosity. We readily offer our thanks and humbly ask for your continued monthly support and gifts. Patti and I live, pay our bills and meet the existing needs all from your sowing into Every Tribe International. No gift has been too large or too small. Yes, it is a journey of faith for us, and God has honored what He has said through your giving. So, thank you for your radical obedience and the strong faith shown towards Patti and myself.

We know that you hear God and it blesses us to know He has sent resources our way through you. Please feel free to pass on our information to your friends and family! We can always use more supporters! We pray that the Lord will bless and expand your influence and vision for the nations, the unreached, and His church. Thank you from the bottom of our hearts!
